

Data Match Results: Los Angeles Unified School District, Department of Children and Family Services, and Probation Department, April 2006 Appendix: Number of DCFS and Probation Students by LAUSD School

Introduction

The Los Angeles County Education Coordinating Council was established by the Board of Supervisors in 2004 to engage County departments, school districts, youth and community groups in fostering educational success for youth involved in LA's child welfare and juvenile justice systems. The Council's "Expecting More: A Blueprint for Raising the Educational Achievement of Foster and Probation Youth" was approved by the Board of Supervisors in February 2006 (www.educationcoordinatingcouncil.org). Since information sharing between schools and County departments raises many challenges, the ECC chose to begin making small steps toward improving shared knowledge about the education of these youth by matching data across systems. Based on initial discussions, the Los Angeles Unified School District's Planning, Assessment and Research Department agreed to complete a data match that would answer questions posed by County departments and other stakeholder groups at the aggregate level. The Council is extremely grateful to LAUSD staff for their willingness to take on this complex technical task, and we look forward to on-going partnerships with LAUSD and the other school districts in LA County.

In this process, data on DCFS and Probation active caseloads as of December 2005 were matched with the LAUSD February 2006 enrollment file. The match identified 8,027 DCFS students, 2,746 Probation students and 102 students involved with both departments who were actively enrolled as of February 2006. This appendix lists the number of DCFS students identified by LAUSD as attending specific schools in two categories – students known to DCFS who remained at home with their families, and those in out-of-home care (including those living in the homes of relatives, in foster homes or in residential facilities). The "Combined" category provides the total number of LAUSD students known to DCFS who were identified in this data match.

While the technique of data matching can be instructive, it also has limitations which readers should keep in mind. First and foremost, the data provide an aggregate snapshot of the overlap between active caseloads of County departments and LAUSD as of February 2006. The youth and families served by DCFS and Probation are very mobile, including both geographic mobility as well as changes in case status, so these data reflect overlap at a particular point in time. Second, matching data across different electronic systems is reasonably effective, but does not provide 100% accuracy. Results will include any errors in the initial electronic records as well as a small percentage of matching error. Thus these data provide a representative snapshot of the overlap between LAUSD, DCFS and Probation youth which should be useful for cross-institutional planning, but they should not be interpreted as providing exact data on the needs of individual students.

The data match shows that DCFS students were distributed in all types of schools within LAUSD, including Special Education Infant/Preschool Support Services programs and Early Childhood programs. Probation students were primarily clustered in secondary schools. The data show that most of the schools in the district enrolled only a small number of students who were under the care of either DCFS or Probation. Over 700 schools (n=722) had 20 or fewer DCFS and Probation students (combined), while 126 schools had more than 20 DCFS and Probation students enrolled as of February 2006.

The range in the number of DCFS and Probation students enrolled at individual schools ranged from none to 164. At the point of this data match, sixty-four schools enrolled between 21 and 40 students, 27 enrolled between 41 and 60 students, 18 enrolled between 61 and 80 students, 11 enrolled between 81 and 100 students and six schools had more than 100 DCFS and Probation students. In order to protect the confidentiality of individual students, this list does not show specific numbers when schools had between 1 and 5 DCFS and/or Probation students enrolled. An asterisk * is used to indicate that individual schools had between 1 and 5 students so that users who want to know how many students are in schools in a particular geographic area can easily calculate a range (i.e., between 40 and 60). Planners and administrators who need specific numbers can contact the Education Coordination Council for more specific data, if needed.

The list includes several different geographic designations that may help users to analyze the data more easily. City Council and County Board of Supervisors districts are listed for each school, along with the LAUSD school board district, instructional complex, local district and school type. The ECC hopes that these data will support shared planning between schools, County departments and their community-based partners. The numbers provided here should not be interpreted as an accurate tally of DCFS and Probation youth, but as a reasonably representative portrait of the geographic distribution of some of our most vulnerable and distressed youth.
